A life-long love of antiques and an eye for fine detail have moved Bonny Neiman from filling her own home with beauty and quality, to helping a rapidly expanding clientele create unique and stylish interiors. “My mother and grandmother were my earliest influences,” says Bonny. “They taught me the difference between something that simply looked good, and something that was truly beautiful because it was well made.” “My mother’s thrill of the hunt was passed on to me,” she says.

“To avoid a sterile look with our modern pieces the warmth of an antique is a must. The authenticity of our handmade new furniture and accessories creates a home that is stylish, yet personal.”

“In building our own home, we decided to search in France, blueprints in hand, for the architectural pieces we wanted to incorporate.”
Word traveled and a business was born.

After her pieces caught the attention of high profile designers, Bonny was encouraged to open her own showroom. Bonny’s selections have appeared on many movie sets and are in homes across the country.

“We don’t get hung up on rules of design. It’s an art. You fall in love with something and we help you make it work. It’s a joy sharing this with our customers as they surround themselves with great things.” - Bonny Neiman

“Tastes have evolved,” she points out, “and people are more willing to trust their own instincts than to try and duplicate their neighbors’ décor.”
